Robert Lew introduces
ColloCaid

ColloCaid is intended to assist academic English writers by providing collocation suggestions, as well as alerting writers to unconventional choices as they write. The underlying collocational data are based on a carefully curated set of about 500 collocational bases (nouns, verbs, and adjectives) characteristic of academic English, and their collocates with illustrative examples. The manual curation by expert lexicographers and reliance on specifically Academic English textual resources are what distinguishes ColloCaid from existing collocational resources.
